I am a unique blend of silliness and humor, bringing laughter to every situation. My dependability and determination inspire those around me, while my joyfulness is a constant source of positivity. I find fulfillment in being selfless and spreading love to others, making meaningful connections along the way. My confidence and assertiveness allow me to navigate challenges with grace, and my intelligence and thirst for knowledge set me apart. In my role at a telecommunications company in sales, I am known for my diligence and unwavering support. Beyond work, I am an adventurous soul who loves camping, kayaking, swimming, playing pool, bowling, and engaging in games and sports like tennis. I find solace in reading and treasure moments spent with family and friends. My outgoing nature is further enriched by my passion for traveling and learning about other cultures through first hand experiences, museums and the arts. I am a vibrant individual, dedicated to embracing life's journey with enthusiasm and an open heart.

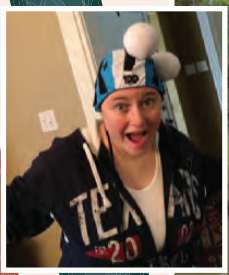

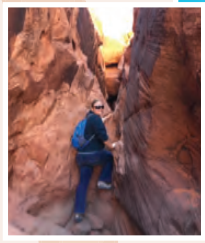

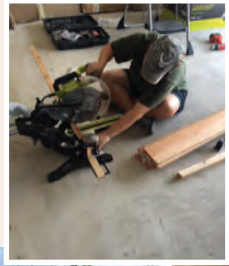

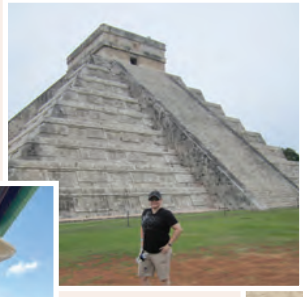

my home

My home is cozy and in a peaceful city neighborhood. It is a charming three-bedroom, two and a half-bath abode, complete with a playroom loft that brims with the promise of childhood adventures with games, sleepovers and forts to be made. What makes my community truly special is the warm camaraderie shared among neighbors. A friendly wave and cheerful greetings are the norm here, fostering a sense of unity. The location is a true treasure, offering a plethora of outdoor activities just a stone's throw away. From festivals and concerts to swimming, kayaking, hiking, and stargazing, there's no shortage of family-friendly entertainment.

what led me to adoption

From a tender age, I've held onto a heartfelt desire to make a difference through adoption. I vividly recall sharing with my mother my aspiration of nurturing a family through adoption, rather than traditional means. Now, as I approach the prospect of motherhood, my excitement knows no bounds. I envision a future filled with joyous water balloon fights, contagious laughter from tickle battles, and spirited games of hide and seek. My dream of creating a home brimming with joy and merriment, a place where silliness and fun abound, fuels my anticipation. Parenthood, for me, is a journey where love knows no boundaries, and the prospect of sharing my life with children through adoption resonates deeply with my heart's calling.

MY FAMILY and traditions

Family is the heart and soul that binds us together. As the oldest of five siblings and a step-sister, I am fortunate to belong to a big and loving family. Our bond is unbreakable, and we always find ways to come together, creating memories. With six nephews and a niece, the laughter of children fills our gatherings, reminding us of the joy in the little things.

Despite having over forty cousins, there's a special connection I share with seven of them. I have sixteen aunts and uncles, each adding their unique touch to our collective story. The closeness extends to both sets of my parents, allowing me to embrace the wisdom and love they offer.

One tradition that holds a special place in my heart is our Easter celebration. From Good Friday to the Monday after Easter, we all gather at my parents' ranch. Days are filled with games, cooking sessions, and heartfelt conversations. Picking dewberries for a delicious cobbler, crafting Easter bunny baskets with the little ones from flowers we pick in the pastures, and the late-night egg stuffing sessions form cherished traditions. As Easter Sunday dawns, we unite for church, followed by an exuberant egg hunt and a hearty feast. I cherish every moment I can share with them.

I want to begin this letter by expressing my utmost respect and admiration for the journey you are embarking upon. Your strength and courage in considering adoption for your baby are truly inspiring. I can only imagine the weight of emotions you must be carrying right now, and I want you to know that your well-being and the well-being of your baby are at the forefront of my thoughts and prayers.

Your selflessness and love for your baby shine through in your consideration of adoption, and I am filled with gratitude for the opportunity to be a part of this process. As I reflect on the journey ahead, I am filled with a mix of emotions. Becoming a parent through adoption is a dream for me. It is a privilege, one that I approach with humility and an open heart.

Your strength and love could create a path for me to fulfill my dream of becoming a parent, and for that, I am truly grateful. While I eagerly await the day when I can hold a baby in my arms and provide a loving and nurturing home, please know that you will always hold a special place in our hearts if you choose me. Your choice is a gift beyond measure, and I promise to honor it by giving your baby a life filled with love, opportunities, and unwavering support.

Thank you for considering me to be a part of your journey, and for possibly allowing me to share in this chapter of your life.
